ABOUT ME

I work with startups and companies to design strong visual identities and build slick digital products. I am very passionate about everything I create, keeping up to date with the latest trends to see how I can deliver stylish and outstanding results.
Having worked as a front-end developer for over 10 years I have had the opportunity to work on a broad range of projects, giving me extensive experience designing mockups and converting them into interactive digital experiences from the start to the finish of the process.
